THE MOLIERE OF EGYPT.

Abou Naddara, the Celebrated Oriental Savant,

COMING TO THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Founder of Two Great Scientific Societies-His Marvelous Linguistic Achievements-Author, Poet and Lecturer-Writer of a Poem in Six Different Languages-Democratic Sentiments Though Surrounded by

Le Courier de la Presse, of Paris, ansounces the departure for the World's Fair of the celebrated Arabian editor, poet and author, Abou Naddara, who has recently visited the large cities of Western Europe and has lectured before large and select audiences on the customs and peculiarities of oriental nations.

The Sheik Abou Naddara is an intellectual prodigy. Though it may seem incredible, it is nevertheless a fact that this literary giant of the East has so mastered the French, Italian, Arabian and English languages that he is able not only to converse fluently in each one of them, but also to deliver public speeches and lectures in them so fault-lessly that it is almost impossible to detect any foreign accent in his pronunciation. Besides this, he is versed in four other modern tongues and in all the various Arabian dialects of Algiers and Tank and Tunis.

NARVELOUS LINGUISTIC ACHIEVEMENT.

In the first four languages mentioned Abou Naddara writes poetry as well as prose. On the day of the inauguration of the Exposition Universelle of Paris, in 1859, he presented an ode to President Carnot in six languages. On that occasion the head of the French government expressed his love and esteem for the popular poet in a fervent ad-dress, in which he congratulated him on his marvelous linguistic achieve-on his marvelous linguistic achievements.

Such a genius will undoubtedly prove a great attraction to the World's Fair, and will receive a hearty welcome from the scholars and philologists, and from his journalistic colleagues in America.
From a letter written in Arabic, received by Mr. Hadly Raphael al Masry, who is in charge of an Egyptian bazar
in the establishment of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., it is learned that the Sheik expects to arrive in Chicago during the expects to arrive in Chicago during the latter part of next month. A brief bio-graphy of this emenent Egyptian digniwhose career has been a mos tary, whose career has been a most eventful one, will undoubtedly prove of interest to the public.

Abou Naddara was born in Cairo, on the borders of the Nile, in April, 1839. Illis father, Rafayit Effendi, occupied a prominent government position under the great Mehemet All, the founder of Khedive dynasty. From his earliest childhood Abou displayed phenomenal lingustic and literary talents. When but twelve years old he composed a poetic culogy in honor of Prince Ashmed, the brother of the old Khedive Ishmael. The prince, after reading the poem, desired to see the child. Before the visit Abou had been instructed to kiss the hand of the prince as soon as kiss the hand of the prince as soon as he would appear in his presence. When he entered the salon and beheld the prince be regarded him earnestly for a few moments and said naively: "My father wants me to kiss your hand, Prince, but why must I do this? You are neither rabbi, nor priest, nor prophet. I am more than you, for I can write verses, which you can not do."

PROTEGE OF PRINCE ASHMED. This was frank and outspoken indeed Where did this young man imbibe his democratic sentiments among surround ings of the most abject submission to royalty? The consternation of the parent can better be imagined than described. But the father was surprised to see the prince embrace the young man and interest himself especially in his behalf. He was educated at his expense by the best European instructors obtainable. Abou rewarded his benefactor by becoming a most assiduous student. He became one of the most brilliant professors of the Polytechnical School of Cairo, and later a most conscientious inspector of the schools of Egypt. Through his efforts great professors The consternation of the paroyalty? Egypt. Through his efforts great pro-gress has been made in the educational system of his country, where of late the most modern improvements have been introduced. In Cairo he also founded two flourishing societies of scientists— the Mahfal Attakadrum (the Society of Progress) and the Mouhebei el Eim (the Frogress) and the Mouleber of Lim thee Friends of Knowledge). To these belong the highest officials, savants, scientists and scholars of Egypt. He is called the Moliere of Egypt. It was he who created the Arabic stage, for which he has written no less than thirty-two tragedies and comedies.

Abou Nuddara is a great success as Abou Naddara is a great success as an editor. His journal has a pro-digious circulation wherever the Arabian dialects are spoken. His out-spoken comments on the government have often been the cause of great per-secutions at the hands of the Ezyptian rulers since the death of his benefactor, but notwithstanding this he went every but notwithstanding this he went every time to Paris and published his paper there and mailed it in scaled envelopes. The demand for his spicy writings was so great that single copies of his paper were eggerly purchased when offered at the exerbitant price of 5 francs. As the shelk is a fluent English speaker, visitors to the World's Fair will have an opportunity to hear the enlightened views of an advocate of Moslem, and will learn much of the Koran and Mussulman literature, which Koran and Mussulman interacture, which to many are as a scaled book. The Sheik has been presented with eleven decorations from the various rulers of Europe, of which he wears seven on his breast. The following card, which he had printed in Paris, will explain the high position which he occupies in his native land:

A LIGHT PUNISHMENT.

The Khan of Kheint Gets Off Easy for Killing Five of His Wives.

Bombay, April 6.-Further information in regard to the atrocities committed by Mir Khudadad Khan, the ruler of Khelat, is to the effect that having suspected five of his numerous wives to be guilty of infidelity he caused them to be cruelly put to death.
In answer to the demand of the British Indian government that the khan should liberate his surviving prisoners and should give an explanation of his course, the khan has agreed to deliver up the prisoners to the British agent. The cruelties of which the khan had been guilty appearing indefensible, the British agent has imposed upon the khan a fine of forty thousand rupees, the money to be devoted to the benefit of the families of those who have been unjustly executed.

Breadstuffs and Provisions.

Chicago, April 6.—The wheat, corn and eats market closed weak after many changes. Provisions stone and secontinued to the end, itye awakened at last to the fact that the weather, which they had killed wheat, was not unlikely to have injured rye, and it accordingly had a rise of Sconts per bushel. Corn is down \(\frac{1}{2} \) can do not \(\frac{1}{2} \) (C. Fork shows an advance of 60c. 1 and 42\(\frac{1}{2} \) (C. Fork shows an advance of 60c. 1 and 42\(\frac{1}{2} \) and ribs 30c. In addition to what was considered a disappointment by the buils in the siatus of the Kansas crop, there was also a report that an early rain was probable in Kansas and Missouri which would relieve the situation and give the crop a big start. For a time the market found little support from any quarter, but it soon underwent a sudden change. Cudahy's brokers began 'to 176k up the wheat, and prices reacted. The late decline was due to heavy sulling and realizingsty early buyers. The provision market was remarkably strong on buying by heavy local dealers.
